Tazha Alan, MPA, PA-C, attended Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, VA, where she earned her master's degree in physician assistant studies. Graduating with Alpha Phi Honors in 2012, she initially embarked on her career in chronic pain, specializing in spine-related diseases. Subsequently, she transitioned to Interventional Radiology, broadening her knowledge of pleural diseases and ultimately leading to her move to Thoracic Surgery. Since September 2017, Tazha has been an integral part of the Thoracic Surgery team at Inova Fairfax Hospital. Her focus lies in peri-operative care, encompassing a range of intra-thoracic diseases such as lung and esophageal cancer, pleural diseases, and mediastinal masses.
