Target audience:

Anesthesiologists, Fellows, Residents and Nurses

Learning objectives:

- Understand what Integrative Medicine is, with some historical context and explain why this field fits with, rather than fights with, conventional medicine
- Understand how mind-body techniques can mitigate the perioperative stress response
- Illustrate our center's experience implementing a pediatric perioperative integrative program
- Become familiar with 3 integrative modalities that you can start using, today, to help your patients have more control over the way they feel when they come for procedures.
